Qualifications:

My formal education includes a Bachelor of Psychology Degree and a Master's Degree in Counseling. I am recognized by the State of Georgia as a Licensed Professional Counselor and have been helping people in the context of counseling relationships for over 15 years.

My early experience includes forensic interviewing and trauma work. I have been qualified and have served as an expert witness in the court setting multiple times. I have been active in the scope of private practice for the last 12 years both in Charleston, SC and the Greater Atlanta area. I completed a year fellowship program with the CS Lewis Institute of Atlanta, and have also serve as a mentor within the organization.

Approach:

You can get the most out of our time together if you understand how counseling works and are informed about how I practice. This is an introduction only, and you may feel free to ask questions throughout the time we work together. In counseling I approach clients from an integrative perspective, meaning I apply my Christian Faith with compatible psychological perspectives. I believe we are whole persons, with physical, psychological, social and spiritual aspects. Whether we include the discussion of the spiritual dimension of life in our time together will be up to you, however, it is important that you are aware that this is my worldview, and it does inform who I am and how I understand others.

I also utilize both Cognitive Behavioral Therapy and Emotionally Focused Therapy as appropriate. Other counseling approaches may be used depending on the individual or situation.

Expectations:

Counseling includes both the development of a trusting relationship between you and I and the development of goals for your situation. Together we will formulate agreed upon plans to accomplish these goals. Thus, counseling will involve your active involvement and efforts to understand and change your thoughts, feelings and behaviors. You will be expected to work both in and out of our counseling sessions. Some examples of this may include homework assignments, exercises, writing in a journal or observing yourself outside of the counseling office.

I will enter the relationship with hope and expectation for positive change. It is important however to know there are possible risks as well as benefits to counseling. Risks may include experiencing uncomfortable feelings such as sadness, guilt, anxiety, anger or frustration. You may even notice unexpected difficulties in your relationships with other people. Often, once the dynamics that did not serve you well in the past become recognized and you begin to change, others may find these changes unsettling and even resist your “new and healthier behaviors”. I will always encourage you to bring any of your concerns specific to this matter to your sessions as we progress. I work with individuals, couples and families. Clients with whom I work are those who I believe I can help. If in my professional opinion, I cannot help utilizing the resources and skills I have available, I will offer a referral to another therapist whom I believe better equipped to meet your needs.

Confidentiality

I regard the information you share with me with the greatest respect, and therefore, I want to be clear as possible about how it will be handled. All information that we share, as well as my records of our conversations are confidential. My administrator has signed a nondisclosure form and adheres to our strict confidentiality policies. There are four circumstances in which I am not able to guarantee confidentiality:

- 1) If child abuse, elder abuse or dependent/impaired adult abuse is suspected, the law requires I report it to the appropriate authorities.
- 2) If I believe a client presents clear and imminent danger to either themselves or others, the appropriate people will be contacted to prevent harm.
- 3) In rare circumstances, I may be ordered by a Judge to release information and would be in violation of the law if I did not provide the requested information.

Finally, if I happen to see you outside of our counseling sessions, my policy is not to acknowledge you unless you greet and/or acknowledge me first. This is to respect your privacy as well as expresses my commitment to honor your confidence.

Minors:

When consulting with parents regarding minor children, specific content of therapy sessions with children or adolescents are held in strict confidence, unless the child's welfare requires that the parent (s) have access to such information. In most cases, joint meetings between children and/or adolescents, the parents and the therapist will be arranged as part of the therapy process.

Couples Therapy:

I strongly adhere to a "No Secrets Policy" when doing couples work. If it comes about that an individual provides information to me that the other party should have knowledge of (active infidelity, placing the family at risk etc), I will strongly suggest they share this with their partner. If they would like my help facilitating the information during a follow up couples session, I am happy to do so. If this is not something they are able or willing to do, it is my policy to share the information, as necessary, on a case by case basis.

Outside Consultation

In order to provide you with the best possible help, there may be times I consult with other therapists who may have insights that could be of assistance. This will only be conducted in a way that your confidentiality is preserved.

Otherwise, I will not tell anyone anything about your treatment, diagnosis, history, or acknowledge you are a client, without your full knowledge and a signed Release of Information form.

If there is someone you believe it will be helpful for me to coordinate with, please provide this information during our initial meeting. I will be happy to provide you with the necessary release and will contact them as needed.

Explanation of Dual Relationships

Although our sessions may bring about intimate psychological conversation at times, it is important to realize that we have a professional relationship rather than a social one. Our contact will be limited to the sessions you arrange with me. You will be best served while I am seeing you for counseling if our relationship stays strictly professional and if our sessions concentrate exclusively on your concerns. You may learn more about me as we work together, but it is important for you to realize you are experiencing me as a professional therapist.

Therefore, because of the nature of a therapeutic relationship, I do not “follow” my clients on Facebook, Instagram or LinkedIn, or any other social media sites. I request that they do not “follow me” on any of my personal social media either.

We have recently established our Kalos Counseling Facebook page and we invite (without any obligation whatsoever) anyone who may be interested to “follow us”, as we often include helpful articles, encouragement and suggestions on a regular basis.

Email, Text and Phone Contact

I try to minimize any text or email correspondence for both privacy and confidentiality purposes. I encourage anyone who has important information to share to feel free to do so via email, however, please know beforehand that the information you provide may not be protected, and because of my schedule, feedback will generally be postponed until our next scheduled appointment.

Please contact Kalos Counseling by calling 770-225-1746. Due to other appointments scheduled throughout the business day, my administrator may be more able to answer your questions in a more expedited time frame than I. If you feel the need to speak with me personally, please allow 24 business hours for me to return calls. If your call happens to fall on either a weekend or vacation, I thank you in advance for allowing further time.

Appointment Reminders

As a courtesy to you, Kalos Counseling will provide a reminder call the day before each scheduled appointment. We also offer you the option of receiving text or email reminders. The calls will be our confirmation you are scheduled in our calendar. If for some unforeseen reason, you do not hear from us the day prior to your appointment please contact our administrator as soon as possible to ensure any avoidable conflicts.

If an emergency situation were to happen outside of normal business hours, please call 911 or go to your nearest emergency room
